The ninth of March strikes a severe blow at Wiggins' prediction.

There are about one thousand places in Milwaukee where liquors are sold, and nearly all of them are saloons.

John Kelly, the boss in democratic politics, of New York, is still lowering his reputation. He has made appointments to lecture.

It is reported that many of the great flour mills of the northwest are at a standstill for the want of wheat which cannot be bought.

Maine has restored capital punishment, the experience being in that state that state prison punishment did increase the crime of murder.

Whether Wiggins' storm comes or not he will have won what he is ambitious for, a good deal of free advertising and a wide-spread notoriety.

Mr. Roger C. Spooner must have made the democrats come to time with the promised pay, as he continues to act as chief clerk of the assembly.

Vanderbilt has the best private art gallery in the United States, and he proposes to let the public see it, and for that purpose has issued 10,000 tickets of admission this winter.

Ohio has been for once unfortunate. It has produced the smallest man for speaker of the house of representatives at Washington, that ever occupied that chair. What he thinks of the country and the country thinks of him, is reciprocal.

The republicans in the state senate should see that the democratic low license bill will not pass that branch of the legislature. The reform proposed by the democrats in the matter of license, is not the reform which the community demands.

There has been another delay in bringing out a decision on the Passion play from the New York court of special sessions. It seems to be a matter that the court does not care to decide. The impression is that Salmi Morse will not be permitted to put that tragedy on the stage in that city.

Speaking of disbanded statesmen, the New York Tribune frees itself in this fashion: "The number of disbanded statesmen was probably never so large in this country as it is to-day. If all of them return to honest work for a living there is danger of the labor market becoming overstocked. The only consolation they can have in their retirement is in looking forward two years in the expectation of seeing a still greater number of aspiring statesmen pushed into obscurity."

Telegraphic reports say that Wiggins' prediction of the greatest storm on earth, is driving many persons crazy. Nervous women have become insane, and even men have been prostrated. When Wiggins sees the mischief he has done he is sorry that he predicted the storm. He will be sorry for another reason before next Monday—that he made a fool of himself. When a common mortal like Wiggins presumes to peer into the future and tell what is to happen, he is putting himself on record as one of the worst cranks of the age.

It was exceedingly generous on the part of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Metcalf, of Milwaukee, to make a proposition to give to the Milwaukee museum of fine arts, the sum of $50,000 in cash with which to erect a suitable building for the association. The only conditions named upon which this sum is to be given are that they reserve the right to accept or reject any site that may be proposed, they being the judges of its adaptability; and that the name of Metcalf be substituted for Milwaukee, as the title of the association. There will be no trouble as to the site being selected by Mr. and Mrs. Metcalf. The building will be completed in three years after it is commenced. This is a generous act for these people, and we are assured that the citizens of Milwaukee fully appreciate the magnificence of the gift.

This comes from Madison by the way of the Milwaukee Sentinel: "Col. Ed. E. Bryant, of Madison, has bought the one-third interest in the Madison Democrat, hitherto held by H. W. Hoyt, and, it is reported, will become the principal editorial writer on the Democrat. Col. Byrant was formerly the law partner of Col. W. F. Vilas, but accepted the position of clerk of the house committee on public lands at Washington upon the meeting of the last congress, which he held up to 4th of March. He has hitherto been a republican in politics, but will doubtless adapt himself to his new environment. He has always had a taste for newspaper writing, and was understood to be the author of the principal articles in the Madison Journal on the several occasions when that paper was working up a boom for Mr. Keyes for United States senator. Last autumn Col. Bryant supported Hazelton for congress and edited a campaign sheet at Madison in his interest against Keyes." The price paid for one-third interest is reported to be $15,000, of which $10,000 was cash, and $5,000 a personal note.

THE RIVER AND HARBOR BILL.

There is a great deal being said about the failure of congress to pass the river and harbor bill, and those who seem to ride that measure as a hobby, predict that the government will lose many thousands of dollars in the depreciation of some of the public works in consequence of the want of money to bring them to a completion, thus saving them from decay. There are no improvements on the lakes and rivers in this state that will suffer materially, although there will not be money enough to put on the usual improvements until June 30, 1884. The following is a list of the improvements in Wisconsin, showing the probable amount that will remain unexpended on each of the dates given:

Dredging Superior Bay, $22,000.
Improving harbor at Menominee, $10,000; Aug. 1, 1883.
Improving harbor at Oconto, $18,000; Nov. 1, 1883.
Improving harbor at Green Bay, $9,000; Oct. 1, 1883.
Improving harbor of refuge at entrance of Sturgeon Bay canal, $5,000; Sept. 1, 1883.
Improving harbor at Kewanee, $1,000; Aug 1, 1883
Improving harbor at Two Rivers, $2,000; Aug. 1, 1883.
Improving harbor at Manitowoc, $1,000; Aug. 1, 1883.
Improving harbor at Sheboygan, $3,000; Aug. 1, 1883.
Harbor of refuge at Milwaukee Bay, $50,000; Oct. 1, 1883.
Improving harbor at Milwaukee, $15,000.
Improving harbor at Racine, $1,000; Sept. 1, 1883.
Improving Fox and Wisconsin rivers, $75,-600.

THE BONDED WHISKY.

Our readers will remember that congress failed to pass the bill which provided that the bonded period should be extended so as to give the owner additional time on which to pay the revenue tax. The failure of congress to bestow this important favor on the whisky men has proved embarrassing to them, as very many of them borrowed money in large sums with the expectation that congress would extend the time in which the tax should be paid.

The Chicago Journal maintains that the most popular movement out of the difficulty which can be proposed, is to ship the surplus whisky out of the country, say to Canada, and store it there until it is needed at home, and then bring it back. It is thought that transportation and storage will amount to so much less than Uncle Sam's tax that the scheme may be carried out with profit to the owners. That paper suggests that this would be a good movement in the cause of temperance. A large amount of whisky sent out of the country might make many a toper's mouth water, but if it should never return, the loss of the distillers would be a gain to teh community.

The owners of large quantities of bonded whisky are certainly placed in a very unpleasant predicament. The production has been enormous during the past two or three years, more than the demand required, and as there is no market for much of it, the only way for them out of the difficulty is to induce the banks to continue their favors and extend their paper. If it could be shipped to Canada and there abide the coming of the democratic congress, that body would never permit the whisky interest to come to grief.

LEGISLATIVE MATTERS.

The bill for the better protection of game in this state, prohibiting the shooting, catching, killing or molesting of the same for a period of three years, came up in the senate Thursday morning for concurrence, and was indefinitely postponed. First, Pierce county was excepted, then Manitowoc, Dane, Burnett, Ashland, etc.; then the third congressional district; then the eighth congressional district, and finally a motion to exempt every county in the state from the provisions of the bill was carried. When it had reached this interesting state, the bill was indefinitely postponed.

The interest bill has passed both houses. The first section reads as follows:

Section 1. The rate of interest upon the loan or forbearance of any money, goods or things in action shall be $6 upon the $100 for one year, and after that rate for a greater or less sum or for a longer or shorter time, but it shall be competent for parties to contract for the payment and receipt of a rate of interest not exceeding $10 on $100, as aforesaid, in which case such rate exceeding $6 on $100, shall be clearly expressed in writing.

This is not a victory for the friends of the bill, as the only change is in decreasing the minimum legal rate from 7 to 6 per cent.

The senate passed the bill appropriating the following sums to the state institutions:

|---|---|
| To the Wisconsin State Hospital for the Insane | $130,000 |
| To the Northern Hospital for the Insane | 155,000 |
| To the Wisconsin Industrial School for Boys | 90,300 |
| To the Wisconsin Institute for the Education of the Deaf and Dumb | 81,500 |
| To the Wisconsin Institute for the Education of the Blind | 36,000 |
| To the Wisconsin State Prison | 31,000 |
| Aggregating | $529,800 |

The senate bill appropriated $6,000 for the fish commission for 1883, and $6,000 for 1884. There was some opposition to the bill in the assembly, but it was finally concurred in by a vote of 56 to 26.

The assembly has passed the bill appropriating various sums of money to state and district agricultural societies.

The bill limiting attorney's fees in cases where counsel has been assigned, to $10 a day instead of $15, has been killed.

The Iron Scale to be Considered.

PITTSBURG, Pa., March 9.—Meetings of the Amalgamated Association of Iron and Steel Workers to consider the scale of wages to go into effect June 1, will be held next Saturday, simultaneously, in this city, Wheeling, W. Va.; Covington, Ky.; Belleville, Ill.; Youngstown, O., and Philadelphia. As telegraphed some weeks ago, the workmen have decided not to demand any radical changes in the present scale, unless it be the adoption of a scale governing the wages of engineers. This being the case, unless the manufacturers insist on a reduction, everything will pass off smoothly.

"I wish I could find something that would cure galls and prevent the hair coming in white," is an expression frequently heard. COLE'S VETERNARY CARBOLISALVE will do it.

MRS. GOUGAR.

The Plaintiff in the Celebrated Slander Case Testifies in Her Own Behalf.

She Denies in Full the Charges Brought Against Her.

LAFAYETTE, Ind., March 9.—At 10 o'clock yesterday morning Mrs. Helen M. Gougar, plaintiff in the Gougar-Mandlor slander suit, went on the witness stand and testified that she became acquainted with Capt. Wallace in 1861, and inaugurated her temperance work about ten years ago and commenced lecturing in 1880, and from that time has been a fanatic on the subject of temperance and woman suffrage, and has spoken in Arkansas, Iowa, Nebraska, Illinois, New York, and Indiana, delivering in the last state about two hundred lectures. She then stated that during the last canvass of the county, which she made with Mrs. Haggart, of Indianapolis, Wallace was not present at any of the meetings. As to the evidence of W. S. Weed, who said that he saw her go to Wallace's office on the Thursday or Friday previous to her lecture on the city government, she said that on the Wednesday of that week she went to a lecture given by Prof. Thompson with her husband. On Thursday she was at the opera house with Mr Gougar, and on Friday the Parlor club met at her house, it being the anniversary of her wedded life. On Saturday night she prepared her lecture, which was delivered on Sunday, Dec. 12, 1879, and was never at Wallace's office at night at any time. On May 31, 1880, she went to Chicago as a delegate to the suffrage convention and as soon as she arrived at Chicago took a 'bus for the Northwestern depot, where she met Dr. Piper and daughter. Wallace came in and she gave him the check to her trunk, with the request that he send it to Evanston. She remained that evening with Mrs. Harbert and Belle Lockwood, and the next day went to the suffrage convention with them, to which place Wallace brought the check for her trunk. She went back to Evanston that night with the Harberts, and the next day attended the suffrage convention, where she spoke. In the afternoon she attended the Republican national convention, but only remained about an hour, and then, with Mrs. Harbert, went to her husband's office, from which place they escorted her to the train, and she departed for Lafayette, arriving home at 2 o'clock, and during the time was never with Wallace except as mentioned. On the Wednesday after the county fair of 1880, the time when Schaible and Kruse testified she went to Wallace's office, she was with Mrs. Dr. Anderson all day from 9 o'clock in the morning on a collecting tour for a temperance convention. That evening she dined with Mrs. Anderson, and was not in Wallace's office during the day. During the time her husband was sick she went frequently to Wallace's office at her husband's request, he being unable to attend to his business, Wallace doing it for him, but never went there at night. On the 28th of April last year, she went as far as Indianapolis with Mr. Gougar and his mother, they going on to Cincinnatti. She was at Mrs. Z. G. Wallace's attending a committee meeting, and took the 9:20 train for Lafayette. She met Prof. White in the depot and sat with him until she arrived home. She did not know Wallace was on the train until an hour after. On arriving home she took a hack and went to her house, but found the door locked and went to the side door with her key and found her sisters reading proof. Soon after Mrs. Shipley called and gave her the key that Mary Sims had left with her. About 10 o'clock Mrs. Sherry and plaintiff took sister Edna home and on returning retired. The next day she went on the 8 o'clock train to Pittsburg, Carroll county, where she lectured, and returned the next day and found her husband at home. During the night she was at home with Mrs. Sherry. Capt. Wallace was not at the house or on the following day as testified to by Mary Sims. In reference to the "hot-box" story, she said her sister read the letter, but at no time did she lie down on the comfort as testified by Sam Ewry. In reference to Dr. De Hart's testimony about the temperance meeting in the fair ground, the witness stated that at no time did she walk down the track, and was never farther away from Mr. Cougar than ten feet. On Sunday morning, Nov. 19, she was at home with her husband. She left the house about twenty minutes after or half-past 6 o'clock. She came down on the ferry to Sixth street, north on Sixteenth to North, and east on North to her mother's. When she got there she found her mother and sister Edna. Mrs. Dr. Fifield called twice to see Edna. She remained at her mother's till 10:30. Her mother and sister Edna took her to their back gate. Her husband let her in. She was not down-town that night. She was not west of Sixth street. She did not see or meet Capt. Wallace that night. She did not walk in the direction of Wallace's office. In short she was not with him at any moment that day or night. The cross-examination was postponed until this morning.

THE LAST RITES.

Gov. Stephens Laid at Rest With Imposing Ceremonies.

The Streets of Atlanta Thronged With Crowds of Mourners.

ATLANTA, Ga., March 9.—The day was bright and clear, and the city crowded with people from all sides. Gen. Toombs' address to the memorial meeting was a touching eulogy of the dead. As the vast audience looked at the blind, decrepit old man, they felt that he would soon follow his friend. The funeral procession was the largest ever known in this section. Military companies from Savannah, Macon, Augusta, Columbus, and other cities were present. In the line were ten colored companies, numbering over one thousand men. The brilliant uniforms, draped flags, glittering hats and pompons made a gorgeous show. The first part of the procession was in the cemetery, over two miles distant, before the last part had moved in the city. Bishop Beckwith conducted the services at the grave in a touching manner. During the funeral business was entirely suspended, all the bells were tolling, the city was hung in crape, and all the streets were jammed with people. Such an assemblage was never seen here before.

The funeral services opened with prayer by Rev. William Adams, of Augusta. Senator Colquitt introduced the speakers.

Gen. Gordon read the following resolution by the citizens' committee:

"Resolved, That in the death of Alexander Hamilton Stephens, Georgia has lost her best beloved and foremost citizen, the union one of its most able and enlightened statesmen, and the world an example of benevolence and humanity."

In presenting the resolution Gen. Gordon spoke in terms of praise of the life of Stephens. Gen. Toombs, ascending the stand, almost broke down with emotion. He spoke for nearly an hour on the life of Stephens. In the course of his eulogy he said Stephens would have deserved all honor if he had done no act in his life except advocate those principles of state rights which he had always held to.

Crowds continued to arrive during the day, until fully fifty thousand visitors were in the city. Such crowds were never seen in Atlanta.

The funeral services in the afternoon were conducted by Rev. John Jones. Dr. Talmage made the closing prayer. The funeral procession was a mile and a half long.

The memorial services at Augusta were participated in by thousands. Nearly every business house in the city was closed, and all the bells tolled. Appropriate services were also held in the colored churches.

WILL WIGGINS WIN?

A Question Which is Agitating Many People in Different Sections.

Women Become Insane, and the Prophet Don't Feel Very Well Himself.

OTTAWA, Ont., March 9.—As the time approaches for Wiggins' great storm, the interest becomes more intense. Many timid persons are known to be prostrated with nervousness. Telegraphic reports say several women have become insane through fear in the United States. The situation has visibly affected Wiggins' and seriously interfered with his appetite yesterday. He reported that the storm is coming and almost wishes now he had not predicted it, in the interest of science, however, he felt that he did a duty he owed his fellow-creatures. He promises early next week to publish to the world the theory on which he based his prognostications. The weather is somewhat milder. The wind having subsided. Wiggins regards this as the calm before the storm.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 9.—There are no indications of the development of the great storm energy within the station of observation of the signal service. Northwesterly winds prevail in the south Atlantic and gulf states. Elsewhere they are light and variable, but mostly southerly. An officer of the signal service bureau, in this city, when asked whether there had been any signs of the big blow which Wiggins has arranged for to-day said: "We have received no indication of any unusual storm energy, and do not apprehend that there will be any disturbance. It is, of course, possible that a severe storm may prevail on the 11th, but it certainly will not come in the way Wiggins indicates. He says the storm will first be felt in the Rocky mountain region, from which it will take a circuit to the gulf of Mexico, and reappear in the Atlantic and eastern states. Now, the fact is, storms don't travel in that way and never did. They sometimes start in the gulf and proceed in a northeasterly or northwesterly direction, but never travel from the Rocky mountains to the gulf. If there was to be a storm on the northern Pacific to-day we should certainly have received indications before this. If we have any storm at all it will come from the gulf, and that is very improbable. I feel warranted in saying that Wiggins's theories are all nonsense, and and that his predictions for to-day and the 11th will not be carried out."

NEW YORK, March 9.—Here and along the New England coast no signs of the storm are reported.

BATHURST, N. B., March 9.—All appearances indicate a big storm.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., March 9.—A special from Maddan, Dakota, reports a gale of fifty miles per hour blowing down the Yellowstone and Missouri river valleys from Montana to Bismarck.

NEW ORLEANS, March 9.—The barometer is rising. It is raining at Port Eads. It is cloudy with occasional light rain along the coast.

MONTREAL, March 9.—There is no sign of the approach here of Wiggins' storm. The weather is quite calm, with a light frost. The thermometer is at zero.

HALIFAX, Nova Scotia, March 9.—The northern lights were bright last night. Wiggins stated they would precede his storm. A local weather prophet, while predicting twenty-four hours of the present fine weather, says he would not be surprised at a blow Friday night, with a new moon and high tides.

THE IRISH TROUBLES.

What the English Authorities Have to Say About Egan's Mysterious Disappearance.

DUBLIN, March 9.—Jenkinson, director of the Irish criminal investigations department, states that Egan has been under police supervision some time, but left Ireland Thursday unknown to the police. Jenkinson believes Egan fled because he thought if Sheridan was extradited important evidence would come into the hands of the authorities. Three letters from Egan were found on Carey's premises, dated October and November, 1881, at which time the invincibles were established. One of these letters expresses the hope that Carey will succeed in the work he has on hand. His flight is regarded as affording the strongest moral evidence of the intimate connection of the Land league with crimes in Ireland. It is rumored the government has evidence proving beyond a doubt that "No. 1" is an Irish-American officer of the Land league, now in America.

WILL TRY IT AGAIN.

Ex-Gov. William Sprague of Canonchet, Married to a Virginia Lady.

RICHMOND, Va., March 9.—Ex-Gov. William Sprague, of Rhode Island, was married yesterday in Staunton to Mrs. Dora Inoz Calvart, of Greenbrier county, West Virginia. There was some difficulty in obtaining a license, neither party being an actual resident of Staunton, and the governor was considerably perplexed for some time before the necessary papers were obtained. The bride is a native of Connecticut, but has been living in West Virginia fourteen years.

Wisconsin Legislature.

MADISON, March 9.—In the senate bills passed appropriating money as follows: To the Wisconsin State Hospital for the Insane, $130,000; to the Northern Hospital for the Insane, $155,000; to the Wisconsin Industrial School for Boys, $90,300; to the Wisconsin Institution for the Education of the Deaf and Dumb, $81,500; to the Wisconsin Institution for the Education of the Blind, $36,000; to the Wisconsin state prison, $31,000. A bill regulating the rate of interest, making the rates 6 and 10 per cent., was ordered to a third reading.

In the assembly the senate bill appropriating $6,000 to the state fish commission for 1883 and $6,000 for 1884 elicited lively discussion. The bill was finally concurred in. Petitions for an amendment of the constitution looking to prohibitory measures flowed in as usual.

During the evening session in the assembly the gamekeepers' and constables' bill was killed. Bills were passed appropriating $100 to the Wisconsin Wool Growers' and Sheep Breeders' association, $3,000 to the Northern Wisconsin Agricultural and Mechanics' association, $800 to the Central Agricultural and Mechanical association, $800 to the State Industrial association, and $8,480 to the State Agricultural society.

Zerelda Garrison.

ST. LOUIS, March 9.—A month ago a report was circulated to the effect that Miss Zerelda Garrison had escaped from the asylum to which she had been committed by her wealthy relatives. The truth of this was denied by Oliver L. Garrison at the time. The old report was revived and a correspondent paid Mr. Garrison a visit, and asked him what truth there was to it. He denied the statement that she had escaped point-blank, and while refusing to give the name of the asylum in which the young lady is confined, said there was a telegraph office close by, and that the officers of the asylum would have notified him immediately had the girl made her escape. Oliver L. is a brother of the commodore and expressed the wish that nothing more be said about the affair.

The Progress of the Star-Route Trial.

Mr. Dorsey Assaults an Opponent and Creates a Sensation.

A Rumored Attempt to Assassinate Mr. Blaine.

RERDELL REITERATES THE CHECK STORY.

WASHINGTON, March 9.—The national capital is in a whirl of excitement over the lively developments in the star-route cases. Rerdell, the star-router who confessed his complicity in the alleged frauds and turned state's evidence, made a public statement in an evening paper, reiterating his former statement that Congressman Belford received a check for $2,000 from ex-Senator Dorsey. He further said that Dorsey had admitted to him that he had given the check to Belford on a train going west; that Belford, Dorsey and friends were playing poker, Belford being stakeholder; that Dorsey lost heavily, and gave the check in settlement.

Both Dorsey and Belford are out in cards denouncing this story in toto as maliciously false.

THE STAR-ROUTE TRIAL.

WASHINGTON, March 9.—Gen. Nelson A. Miles was called to the witness-stand yesterday morning by the defense in the star-route trial. He testified that in the summer of 1876 he went into the Tongue river country. It was just after the Custer massacre, and there were few white settlers there except army attaches, who established mail service. From twenty to sixty days were consumed in communicating with Washington.

The witness remembered that John Dorsey went to Fort Keogh before the Tongue river route was opened, thinking that a route might be established more direct than that proposed. Witness sent out an armed escort in the attempt to discover such route. The attempt failed, however, and Dorsey returned to Bismarck. The witness described the obstacles to the establishment of a mail route, arising from hostile Indians. Sometimes, he said, white men could pass safely.

After recess, although the court assured Wilson that Sweeney had brought in enough papers to last a week, he insisted on his right to be allowed access to the others. The old wound was re-opened, and counsel had a lively tilt. Merrick characterized the demand as ridiculous. He declared that every facility had been offered the defense, and when Wilson persisted in his demand exclaimed: "I don't think you know what you want yourself. I don't think you are sane on it, so help me God!"

"I think you are crazy," retorted Wilson.

The Court—Mr. Merrick, you ought not to talk to a crazy man in that way. [Laughter.]

Wilson (bitterly)—I suppose the court is indorsing what Merrick said.

Merrick (with mock gravity)—Your honor should not say that.

The court—Of course it was only a jest. Assuming his theory that you are crazy, I said he ought not talk to you in that way.

Wilson—It is not the first time the court has talked to me in an unkind way.

The court—It did not make a mistake, because of your incapacity of appreciating a jest. Merrick was getting too warm, and I thought to call him off.

Merrick attempted to interpose, but Wilson turned angrily, and shaking his finger at him, exclaimed: "I know the methods of this prosecution sitting behind me for weeks."

Bliss—So far as the prosecution knows that is not true.

The court—Mr. Wilson, if you will allow me another joke I will say that you are all spies upon one another—it is the business of the counsel to find out what they can of the plans of the other side.

Wilson (with unabated warmth)—I will not allow any man to spy on me if I know it, and I will never spy on another man.

Merrick (laughing) I've plenty behind me now.

The examination into the papers was then resumed. When it had proceeded some time the court interrupted, saying it failed to see the pertinency of the offered evidence (the papers.)

Henkle said these deductions had been set out in the indictment as part of the conspiracy.

The court said it was not part of the government's case.

Mr. Merrick said it was an attempt to prove that a man did not committ one act by showing he did not do another.

Davidge agreed at length in support of the offer, taking the indictment as the basis of his argument, and he declared that Brady while in office had cut to pieces his alleged conspirators on making deductions and fines, and had acted only as a good man—as a judge in, making remission where they seemed to be demanded in strict justice.

Wilson also participated in the argument. He asserted that whenever a postmaster had regularly reported a failure to Brady he had relentlessly and unerringly and everlastingly (so long as he did last in his office) imposed these fines in strict accordance with the law and regulations. Walsh had said that Brady got half of the remissions, and he wanted to show by the testimony offered that this statement of Walsh's was utterly untrue. He wanted the jury to see whether or not the remission had been justly made. He wanted to show that the remitted money passed into such hands that it would have been absolutely impossible for his client (Brady) to touch a cent of it.

Bliss said that while the prosecution regarded the evidence as inadmissible, yet in view of the wild statement of the other side he would request the court to admit it. The Bismarck—Tongue river route—was the only route upon which there was no subcontractor. Upon others it was possible for Brady to cut and deduct to any extent, so it was within the limit of the subcontractor's pay.

The court decided to let in the evidence, in order to save time and to shorten the trial, so as to bring it within the compass of an average lifetime.

So again the examination was resumed and continued until adjournment.

DORSEY EXCITED.

The Star says: To-day it leaked out that Tuesday morning an attack was made by Stephen W. Dorsey on Judge Lilley, father of ex-Deputy Auditor Lilley, at the residence of the former. Lilley called at Dorsey's residence accompanied by a friend, and they were admitted at once by Dorsey, who invited them to his parlor. They commenced conversation, during which Dorsey accused Lilley of obtaining Rerdell as a government witness. Dorsey became excited and dealt Lilley a blow in the face. The latter throwing himself back to avoid the blow, his chair was upset and he fell to the floor, when it is alleged Dorsey kicked him in the lower part of the abdomen. Lilley is now confined to his room by his injuries"

Ex-Senator Dorsey's friends in conversation admit the fact of the assault on Judge Lilley, but assert it took place under circumstances of great provocation and after Mr. Dorsey had been grossly insulted.

THE CIVIL-SERVICE COMMISSION.

All the civil-service commissioners are here, and are waiting for the secretary of the interior to provide a place for them to perform their duties. The venerable originator of the civil-service act, Commissioner Dorman B. Eaton, remarks that he fears there will be voting for the commissioners to do unless it gets to work very soon, for he observes that congressmen and ex-congressmen are putting a great many men into office. This remark is justified by the great rush of members of the late congress to secure places for themselves or for their dependents. It would be highly interesting to have a batch of the statement who were wounded in the revolution of 1882 subjected to a crucial civil-service examination. A large number of appointments are to be made within the next few months for the public service in and outside of Washington, but only a small portion of them will come within the jurisdictions of the civil-serviceboard.

THE MALAGASSY ENVOYS.

The envoys from Madagascar and their suite were yesterday entertained as guests of the government by an excursion to Mount Vernon, in company with the resident diplomatic corps and a number of other distinguished persons invited by the secretary of state to make up the party. The trip was made on the United States steamer Despatch, which left the navy yard at 11 a. m., and returned after an absence of five hours. The weather, though cold, was clear and bright, and the ladies and gentlemen of the party spent a large part of the time on deck. The Marine band furnished the music, and a sumptuous luncheon was served in the ship's cabin. The arrangements were made under the direction of Secretary Frelinghuysen by Assistant Secretary Davis and Chief Clerk Brown, of the state department. Among the invited guests who took part in the excursion besides nearly all the foreign ministers and their families, were Representatives Kasson and Belmont of the foreign affairs committee; Senator Hill, Adjt. Gen. Drum, Brig. Gen. Hazen, Admirals Worden, Rogers and Walker, William Henry Trescott, and Gen. Lucius H. Foote, the newly appointed minister to Corea.

PERSONAL GOSSIP.

John Sherman is interested with Windom in the coming financial plunge. Through his broker he has become a subscriber to Windom's new stock exchange. It is questioned here whether this venture can meet with great success. There is no trouble about one point, and that is raising the money to begin. A trustworthy New York authority says the seats are nearly all taken. John Sherman is itching still to get into business. If Windom is successful, Sherman will be tempted to follow him. The Ohio senator has become quite intimate with James G. Blaine lately, and all that means getting into business. Blaine is in a great coal, iron and southern railroad scheme. Windom is also a stockholder. So is Senator Davis, of West Virginia. Davis did not care to be re-elected on account of the demands of his new enterprise. John Sherman is one of later friends who have been taken into the combination.

ESTIMATES FOR NEXT YEAR.

The budget for the new fiscal year, 1883-84, according to the actual current appropriations made by congress and the estimated standing appropriations for interest on the funded debt, the cost of collecting the customs and internal revenue, etc., and the regular sinking fund, will amount to $283,475,000. The revenues under the revised tariff duties and excise taxes may be safely estimated as good for $390,500,000. This would leave applicable to the purchase of the funded stocks of the United States, the sinking fund, $45,072,000, and the extra surplus of $106,025,000; together, $151,097,000.

AN INVESTIGATION.

Secretary Folger has directed N. W. Bingham and S. E. Chamberlain, special agents of the treasury department, to proceed to San Francisco and Portland, Oregon, for the purpose of making a thorough investigation of the whole subject of importation at those ports of sugar free of duty under the Hawaiian treaty. It will be remembered that Representative Perry Belmont made a minority report to congress on this subject, in which he referred to extensive frauds alleged to have been perpetrated on the revenue at the ports in question under the treaty with Hawaii.

MORE INDIAN SCHOOLS NEEDED.

The secretary of the interior said to a correspondent that he was about to establish an Indian school in Kansas. "If congress would give us forty such schools, and use for the purpose the money now appropriated to the the army in guarding and controlling the Indians upon the plains, we should have no more Indian wars. There is no longer and difficulty in getting the children to attend the schools, and the parents of those who do attend will not go on the war-path."

THE PRESIDENT TO GO TO FLORIDA.

For some months past the president has desired to visit Florida, and it is understood that if he can conveniently arrange to do so, he will make the journey within the next few weeks The privilege of fishing in Florida waters would be one of the objects of the journey, besides the president has been suffering lately from a cartarrhal affection, which a short stay in the Florida climate would be likely to remove. If he decides to make the trip, it is probable he will leave Washington before the end of the present month.

A SENSATIONAL RUMOR.

A report is current that a short time before the adjournment of congress an attempt was made by some person unknown to assassinate ex-Secretary Blaine by shooting into the carriage in which he was seated while returning from one of the night sessions at the capitol. Mr. Blaine treats the matter lightly, and says the hole through the windows of the landau in which he rode was probably made by a pebble thrown by some boy with a "devil's sling." His family, however, are said to take a more serious view of the occurrence.

SESSINGHAUS.

Mr. Sossinghaus, of St. Louis, has drawn about $13,000 for the day that he represented a part of St. Louis in congress, yet he thinks he was badly treated because an appropriation of $250 for his stationary allowance was not put in the sundry civil bill When is was suggested that he had not earned $10,000 for one day's service, he replied that he was admitted in time to vote for the tariff bill, and thought that vote alone was worth $10,000.

UNCLE SAM'S INVENTORY.

When Treasurer Gilfillan leaves his office on March 31, it will be the duty of the secretary to appoint a committee of experts to count the funds on hand at the close of business on that day. This is done in order that the new treasurer can assume his duties with the full knowledge of the state of his balances and accounts. There are to be counted about seventy-five million dollars in bonds, which will take about one month to get through with.

THE POSTOFFICE DEPARTMENT.

A statement containing the receipts and expenditures of the postoffice department for the third quarter of the calendar year, ended Sept. 30, 1882, shows receipts of $10,545,932, and expenditures of $10,188,969; surplus, $356,963. During the same quarter for 1881 the receipts were $9,490,706, and expenditures $9,680,810; excess of expenditures over receipts, $190,104.

GILFILLAN'S SUCCESSOR.

It seems to be the settled conviction that Assistant Treasurer Wyman will be appointed United States treasurer to succeed Gilfillan, resigned. The selection would be in the direct line of civil service reform, and be in accordance with what has been the president's policy in other appointments.

SENATOR CAMERON'S CONDITION.

Senator Cameron, of Pennsylvania, has been growing better in health since the important surgical operation performed upon him on Saturday, and has gone to Fortress Monroe for rest and recuperation. Later in the season he will make a trip to Europe.

GEN. HAZEN.

It was said at the executive mansion in response to inquiries that the president has not ordered a court-martial to investigate the conduct of Gen. Hazen, the chief signal officer, and that no representation on the subject had been made to the president by the war department.

DAVID DAVIS.

Hon. David Davis, of Illinois, will leave here in a special car Saturday morning for Fayetteville, N. C., where he is to be married to Miss Annie Burr the first of next week.

POLLOCK.

Indian Inspector Pollock has tendered his resignation to take effect the 31st inst. Secretary Teller has already selected his successor.

Michigan Legislature.

LANSING, Mich., March 9.—The legislature held very brief sessions yesterday morning and adjourned for the convention. Two or three acts were passed of purely local nature. Lieut.-Gov. Crosby ordered the flag over the senate at half-mast yesterday, out of respect to the late A. H. Stephens.

A Baptist Minister's Experience.

"I am a Baptist minister, and before I thought of being a clergyman I graduated in medicine, but left a lucrative practice for my present profession, forty years ago. I was for many years a sufferer from quinsy, Thomas' Electric Oil cured me. I was also troubled with hoarseness, and Thomas' Electric Oil always relieved me. My wife and child had diphtheria, and Thomas' Electric Oil cured them, and if taken in time it will cure seven times out of ten. I am confident it is a cure for the most obstinent cold, or cough, and if any one will take a small teaspoon and half fill it with Oil, and then place the end of the spoon in one nostril and draw the Oil out of the spoon into the head, by sniffing as hard as they can, until the Oil falls over into the throat, and practice it twice a week, I don't care how offensive their head may be, it will clean it out and cure their catarrh. For deafness and earache, it has done wonders to my certain knowledge. It is the only medicine dubbed patent medicine that I have ever felt like recommending, and I am very anxious to see it in every place, for I tell you that I would not be without it in my house for any consideration. I am now suffering with a pain like rheumatism in my right limb, and nothing relieves me like Thomas' Electric Oil." Dr. E. F. Crane, Corry, Pa.

A Lawmaker in Trouble.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., March 9.—Hon. Seth F. Crews, member of the legislature from Jefferson county, and law partner of Charles T. Strattan, railway and warehouse commissioner, was arrested yesterday on a warrant from St. Clair county, where he was indicted yesterday for obtaining money on fraudulent securities from Ignatius Day, of Belleville, through Edward Abend, a loan agent. The sheriff will take Mr. Crews to Belleville to-day, where he will give bail in $5,000. Mr. Crews asserts that the indictment is instigated by malice with the intention of extorting money. He states that he borrowed the money on property on which there was a prior loan, and that the loan agent knew it at the time. The property sold for $11,000, and was considered ample security for the mortgages, notes, and loans against it. It has since depreciated. Mr. Crews' friends here confirm his statement.

Kansas Legislature.

TOPEKA, Kan., March 9.—The legislature adjourned at noon yesterday, having been in session since Jan. 9. One hundred and sixty-seven bills passed both houses, of which Gov. Glick signed 162, vetoed 4, and allowed 1, a bill making attorneys' fees liens on property in foreclosure of mortgages, to die. The appropriations aggregate $1,530,000. Gov. Glick signed the miscellaneous appropriation bill, but protested against an item of $2,300 to the Samaritan mission school in Wyandotte county and $1,000 for the arrest of two murderers, one of whom escaped.

Illinois Legislature.

SPRINGFIELD, March 9.—Mr. Whiting moved to reconsider the vote by which the express taxing bill was defeated. He said that in case this vote was reconsidered, he would move to send it to order of second reading so that it might be amended to meet the views of senators. The bill was reconsidered, 20 to 7, and the bill sent to the judiciary committee.

The senate made the following confirmations:

Wm. N. Brainard of Cook, Edmund C. Lewis of LaSalle, and Charles T. Strattan of Jefferson, railroad commissioners.

Mr. Needles, by consent, introduced a bill to require that the capital stock of all companies doing business in this state shall be taxed as companies organized under the laws of this state and are now taxed.

The special order, the regular appropriation bill, was read a second time and taken up section by section for amendment.

In the house the bill appropriating $50,000 for the relief of the Shawneetown sufferers from the recent floods was read a second time, as was also the bill to appropriate $5,000 for the flood sufferers at Rose Clare, on the Ohio river. There was only one vote in the negative.

MICHIGAN.

The Greenback Convention Decides on Fusion With the Democrats--- The Resolutions.

LANSING, Mich., March 9.—The Greenback State convention was called to order at 11 a. m., yesterday, by W. D. Fuller, chairman of the state central committee. W. D. Fuller, of Newaygo, was elected chairman, and W. A. Innis, of Grand Rapids, secretary. The committee on credentials, permanent organization, and resolutions were appointed and the convention took a recess until 2 p. m. It was quite evident from the start that the straight out Greenbackers proposed to be heard. About 400 delegates were present, and, on reassembling, the Democratic committee on fusion was admitted to the floor and presented an appeal from the Democrats for union which, after a long and acrimonious debate, was accepted, seventy delegates opposing any further alliance with the Democrats. But all objection was smothered, and a committee proceeded to fill up the blank in the Democratic ticket of Wednesday, Thomas R. Sherwood, of Kalamazoo, was nominated for justice of the supreme court for the short term, and C. J. Willett, of Gratiot county, for regent of the university. The Republicans are well pleased with the situation and confident of success in the April election.

The following resolutions were adopted:

"Resolved, That we reaffirm the national platform adopted in Chicago in 1880 and the resolutions of the Greenback state convention that convened in Grand Rapids last year.

"Resolved, That when a party become so rent by feuds and torn by factions that its majority voice is disregarded at the dictation of a notorious corruptionist, and spends two months, at an enormous expense to the people, in the election of a United States senator, it is evidence that it has passed the days of its usefulness and should be laid aside as an engine of mischief.

"Resolved, That we denounce as the crowning infamy of the last congress its act relating to revenue, the plain design of which is to relieve monopolies and banking capital of taxation, stop the payment of the bonded debt, and perpetuate the burdens of labor.

"Resolved, That as the best possible reform of the civil service we favor the choice by the direct vote of the people of all federal officers possible of election, especially president, vice president, senators, and postmasters.

"Resolved, That we are in sympathy with all movements against monopolies, and, keeping in view the preservation of our own party organization, we would advise a full representation from Michigan at the convention called to meet at Chicago, July 4 next."

HALSTEAD.

He Will Go to Washington as Correspondent of His Paper.

WASHINGTON, March 9.—The correspondent of The Louisville Courier-Journal telegraphs that paper: I have some newspaper gossip that will not be uninteresting. The changes in journalistic circles at Cincinnati which made the Commercial and Gazette one are still fresh in the minds of your readers. The combination of elements that seemed upon their face so incongruous have borne good fruit. Surely no one who has watched the scope and course of the new paper will deny it. Since the consolidation there has been no definite determination until now as to the disposition and arrangement of the different departments. Beginning with March 1 Mr. Richard Smith has assumed the entire business control. In a word, his hand will rock the counting-room cradle, and as a rule it is the hand that moves the newspaper world. Mr. Murat Halstead has gone to Washington, from whence he will telegraph editorial letters to his paper. He will also include New York eventually. This, as I understand it, is a permanent arrangement. Mr. Percy Proctor will continue managing editor, and Mr. W. H. Harrison, who twenty years ago set type on The Commercial and who has since filled with ability numerous responsible positions on its staff, has been made city editor. The most important of these changes, of course, is Mr. Halstead's folding of tents. There can be no question but he will make an ideal correspondent. Twenty years of service with his pen has only mellowed his style. His wealth of information; his knowledge of public men; his intimate acquaintance with every prominent personage worth knowing make him thrice armed for the fray. There is no prosiness about him. His paragraphs snap like a whip; his leaders are virile and convincing. If I mistake not he will wake the echoes in the news centres of Gotham and the capital. The younger men, who measure their matter with a yard-stick and at so much a column, will learn that there is an article in the market not only a yard wide, but all wool, and that quantity will never compete with its quality.

"Halstead is a great worker," said a friend of his to me yesterday. "He has been on The Commercial since the war, and has given every department his attention. Answering letters, searching exchanges, writing editorials, everything and anything that was to be done. He has, I believe, given his own party as many hard licks as he ever gave the Democrats, but when the day of reckoning came he was always with the Republicans. I first met Halstead at the Charleston convention in 1860. He is a man of brains—a handsome, manly fellow of magnificent physique."

Finding a Father.

About thirty years ago there resided upon a farm, a few miles northeast of the city of Oakland, a man named Thomas A. Fairbanks, who, if not in affluent circumstances was, as the saying is, "comfortably fixed," with a good home, a happy family, consisting of a wife and two children. He was proud in the strength of his manhood, and had a panorama of his life for the twenty years to come been spread out before him he would have scoffed at the picture. Sickness came, and after years of unavailing care, in 1857 he laid the mother of his children away in the grave. The long illness in his family and consequent expenses made it advisable for him to dispose of his homestead, and his children, then quite small, were taken in charge by a sister of his deceased wife, who shortly returned with them to her home in Massachusetts. Fairbanks came to this valley soon after to make a new home, fully expecting in a little time to again be able to gather his children under his own roof. But man proposes and God disposes. Soon after his arrival here, while engaged in his vocation as a farmer, his team ran away and he was thrown under a wagon and had one of his sides literally crushed. His wounds were very painful, and trouble him even yet. During this long illness physicians sought to alleviate his agonies by the use of opium, and with the usual result. He became an opium fiend. At times he struggled against the habit, which he knew was deadening both body and mind. He might still have recovered had he not again been the victim of misfortune. But again he was crushed and his limbs were mangled—this time by the caving o a well which he was digging. Then his courage left him, and he abandoned himself to the use of the baleful weed, and for the past twelve or fifteen years he has been most of his time an inmate of the county infirmary, and constantly so for the past six years, until ten months ago, when Dr. Kelly, one of the visiting physicians, became interested in the quiet, patient old man, and determined to give him a better home. Since then Fairbanks, now upward of seventy years of age, has been thoroughly content and has earnestly striven to make all possible returns in the way of light chores, for the kindness of the doctor, whom he regards in the light of a benefactor. A week ago he received a letter. An event in itself, as he had not received a letter from any one in a half a score of years, and did not suppose that outside of this valley there was a friend anywhere who remembered him. His memory was weakened by the drug which had been his sole luxury for years, and he scarcely remembered that he had children somewhere in the world. The letter was opened with trembling hands. It was signed with a name which he had never heard, but it contained queries which agitated him greatly, although it was very brief. It merely asked if he had ever lived at Fruitvale, in Alameda County, and if he was the father of a daughter named Albertina.

He recognized the name of his daughter, of whom he had not heard for many years, but Fruitvale he knew nothing of. He showed his letter to his best friend, and described to him the location of his former home, which is where Fruitvale Station now is. By the advice of the doctor he answered the letter, giving as full an account of his own and the history of his family as he could recall. A few days ago he received another letter from the same man, stating that he was the husband of Albertina Fairbanks, for whose father they had spent ten years in unavailing search, and that they believed him to be the man. He will be sent to Oakland in a few days for an interview, but the circumstances are such as to leave no room to doubt that the old man has found a home for his declining years, and that the few years remaining to him will be made as happy as possible. Dr. Kelly speaks of him as honest, industrious and faithful, having but one vice, and that the result of his injuries.—San Jose (Cal.) Mercury.

For Our Stomach's Sake.

Madame de Duras once laughingly said that a knowledge of Latin was useful in making sweetmeats, and so it would almost seem as if a thorough knowledge of physics was essential in selecting a dinner, as if our cooks ought to be first class chemists, and our caterers graduates from the medical school's. After listening to homolies, reading volumes upon what to eat and what not to eat, after having our cherished mince-pie wrested from us, after sacrificing our toasted cheese, our beloved doughnut, our savory fritter, to the enlightened spirit of the age—after giving our plum-pudding the cold shoulder in return for indigestive chills, and banishing cake from the festive board, according to the dictates of the dietary police—we begin, perhaps, to suspect that we have been denying ourselves for naught, since those who eat what is set before them, asking no questions for conscience sake—or the hostess'—paying little heed to the material so long as it pleases the palate, are quite as well off in the matter of digestion as we who have given our whole minds to it. But let one of these, careless folks become conscious that he has a stomach, and we experience a relapse into belief in the heroic diet. In the meantime we are likely to be buffeted by every wind of doctrine; after devoting ourselves to oat-meal with the enthusiasm of a proselyte, taking the bitter with the sweet, we are suddenly confronted with the theory that oatmeal is too heating and irritating to the coats of the stomach, which have become more care to us than all our other garments put together; after dissipating upon Graham bread, we are told that it is too rich with nitrates, and needs to be adulterated with a trifle of its poor relation, the white loaf; after abandoning our fragrant cup of Mocha, or our precious bohea, we find that "clear cold water" is swallowed at our own risk; after doing violence to our prejudices and taking of beef underdone, somebody rises to say that it is the worst thing we could do, as meat should be thoroughly cooked in order to be wholesome; after converting ourselves to a taste for fish, with a view to increased brain power, we are confronted by the intelligence that it is an exploded theory which recommends fish for brain food; after resigning our hard-boiled egg like a martyr, the progress of science assures us that fluids must be converted into solids before digesting; after coaxing our convalescence with wine jelly, some learned Æsculapius tells us he has had more convalescing patients killed by wine jelly than by disease. Henceforth the culinary department of housekeeping becomes a bug-bear; the simplest preparation may turn out to be a dangerous compound; have not our yeast-powders betrayed us? and may we not be shortening the days of friends and relations by means of our new recipes?—Harper's Bazar.

—A Western editor speaks of Herbert Spencer as a "thinker from Thinksville."

One Thing at a Time.

A prominent element in Commodore Vanderbilt's success is said to have been his doing one thing at a time. So long as he was engaged in the steamboat line it was steamboats and nothing else; and when he went into railroads all the steamers were sold, except one, and that being unsalable, was presented to the Government.

It is the concentration of energy and attention upon a given object which gives us the mastery of it. Many people fail because they are always ready to take hold of some other thing before the work which they have in hand is half done. It is better to do one thing thoroughly than a dozen things imperfectly. We may have too many irons in the fire at one time—more than we can handle with impunity. "A bit here and a bit there" is the rule with some persons, and the result is that they do nothing but slipshod work.

They may appear to be exceedingly busy as they jump about with goat-like alacrity from one thing to another, but they accomplish little, because they do not really finish anything. The secret of success lies very much in continuous action. Trying to do too many things at once is fatal to this. If I were a mechanic, I would be careful never to engage to do half a dozen jobs in one day, when I ought to know that there will be only just time enough to do one job properly. If I were a plumber, I would not promise to be in half a dozen different houses at the same hour. If I were an operator in stocks, I would not spread myself over too wide a surface. If I were a writer of books, I would always finish one volume before beginning another. What a terrible muddle an editor of a great paper would make of the concern if he should undertake to furnish matter for all departments out of his own head! Division of labor is the order of the day, and in the department of mechanics if a man does one thing well, this is all that is expected of him.

It does not follow, however, that in the higher occupations of life a man should always confine himself to one thing. While he is doing any one thing, let him give his undivided attention to it; but a little variety of employment is not inconsistent with thoroughness. A German scholar is said to have expressed his regret, on his dying bed, that he had devoted his life to the study of two Greek particles, when it would have been the wisest course for him to have confined his studies to only one. He must have been rather a dry sort of man. One may be at the same time a poet, philosopher and historian; he may excel both as a painter and a sculptor; but he cannot work with the brush in one hand and the chisel in the other; he must be content to do one thing at a time. The peripatetic performer who travels round the country with a row of reeds fastened to his lips, and a drum on his back, to be struck with his elbows, and a pair of cymbals in his two hands may astonish the multitude by his musical versatility, but he does not as an artist of the highest order.

There is nothing which more seriously impairs the tone of the mind than desultory reading—the careless dipping into one book after another, and never dwelling long enough anywhere to find out what the author means. A gifted person, like Macaulay, may be able to skim a book and get all the cream, and then retain it for use—taking in a whole page at a glance; but most people, if they would hope to profit by reading, must be willing to walk slowly when such a man runs.

In any pursuit, if we only keep on doing, and do not allow one thing to lap over another, so as to make confusion, we shall come out right enough in the end. The tortoise won the race because, although he was deliberate, he kept straight on. The hare lost it because of his friskiness. Every brick in a great edifice has to be laid singly. Every thread in a garment must be spun on its own spindle. Every letter, and space, and stop must be placed in the stick by itself.

Great results come of doing one thing at a time. Chaos sometimes comes when we try to do more.

There is an essential distinction between work and play, and it is not easy to do both at the same time. One thing at a time. When we work, we should work; and when we play we should play. Work becomes wearisome when it is continued too long, and play ceases to be play when one does nothing else. We read of people who divide the day into sections, appropriating so many hours to work, and so many into recreation, and so many to their meals, and so many to sleep. They live by rule. This is not always practicable, and it is not always desirable. If one gets fairly to work, and feels like it, it may be well to keep on until the task is accomplished, without regard to the striking of the clock. When the steam is fairly up it is wise to take advantage of the fact, for in certain moods we can accomplish more in an hour than we could in half a day when the action of the mind is slow. As long as the iron is hot we had better keep on striking. A man may live by rule without allowing himself to become a victim to rule.

Some people must live by rule, and are obliged to do only one thing at a time, whatever their preferences may be. The operative in a mill has no choice of hours or occupation; when the bell strikes he must be in his place, and remain there until "the clock tells the hour for retiring;" and he must do just what the machine requires him to do. But most persons have some liberty of choice, and if they do things helter-skelter they must take the consequences. It is a very poor way of doing things, and generally results in zero, which in the Italian means naught, and in the Arabic is marked by a dot, which is equivalent to nothing. "One thing at a time," young man, if you would hope to succeed, and if possible, let that be something worth while. —Bishop Clark, in N. Y. Ledger.

It May Save Your Life.

The manufacturers have yet to hear of a single case of Dyspepsia or Biliousness when ZOPESA was used as directed, in which it was not more than satisfactory. Many write that it is a wonderful remedy. We can show where as high as 40 pounds were gained by its use in breaking up chronic Biliousness and Dyspepsia. Its friends increase very fast, and all who use as directed are surprised and gratified. For sale by Prentice & Evenson.
